

Jobbnorge ID: 276016

Deadline: 4/9/2025

Website: <https://www.uib.no/om/84775/ledige-stillinger-ved-uib>

Scope: Fulltime

Duration: Fixed Term

PhD Research Fellowship in English linguistics

UiB - Knowledge that shapes society

Through robust and close interaction with the world around us - globally, nationally and locally - we shall be instrumental in building a society based on knowledge, skills and attitudes.

Do you want to take part in shaping the future?

Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oYaThmlq6Kg>

PhD position

The Department of Foreign Languages invites applications for a PhD position in English linguistics commencing from August 2025, or as agreed upon. The position is for a fixed-term period of four years.

The Department of Foreign Languages spans nine different languages: Arabic, Chinese, English, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Russian and Spanish language and Latin-American Studies. Teaching and research are conducted in the disciplines of language/linguistics, literature, history/cultural studies and didactics (<http://www.uib.no/en/fremmedsprak>). The Department has around 60 permanent academic staff members, along with approximately 20 PhD and postdoctoral fellows, and eleven administrative members of staff.

The PhD candidate will be affiliated with the section for English linguistics at the Department of Foreign Languages, as well as with the research group Language Data and Language Change \(LDLC\), based at the same Department. The PhD project must be compatible with the research interests of the members of the section for English linguistics, and it must also be relevant to the LDLC research group in the area of English linguistics. Potential fields of research include, but are not strictly limited to:

- Language variation and change on all levels of linguistic analysis (phonetics/ phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics)
- Synchronic or historical linguistics
- Corpus linguistics
- Language contact
- Contrastive linguistics

The PhD project must emphasize the use of empirical data, and its argumentation should be quantitatively oriented. The project should be anchored in and/or informed by linguistic theory.

About the PhD position and the research training

The main purpose of the PhD position is to complete a doctoral degree, which qualifies for independent research and other forms of employment that demand specific competency.

The duration of the PhD position is four years. The time allocated to the research project itself is 2.5 years, whilst a total of one year will be devoted to other, career-promoting work such as teaching, dissemination of results and university administration. A plan for this part of the position will be established in collaboration with the Department. The remaining six months will be allocated to formal training. As a PhD candidate, you must participate in the Faculty of Humanities' ph.d program program. The PhD programme comprises a training component corresponding to 30 ECTS.

Qualifications and personal qualities

- The applicant must hold a Norwegian master's degree or an equivalent foreign degree in English linguistics. It is a condition of employment that the master's degree has been awarded by the application deadline. Foreign degrees will be evaluated according to the regulations of the Norwegian Directorate for Higher Education and Skills and The Faculty of Humanities' PhD Programme plan.
- The applicants must be able to work independently in a structured manner and have strong cooperation skills.
- Applicants must be fluent in both written and oral English.
- Documented skills in the use of modern corpus tools will be an advantage.
- Experience with dissemination work will be an advantage.

Applicants will be evaluated according to admission requirements in The Faculty of Humanities' PhD Program pt. 2.1.

Applicants must submit a proposal for a research project that will result in a doctoral dissertation, as well as a progress plan for the project.

In assessing the applications, the academic quality and feasibility of the proposed PhD project and the academic qualifications of the candidate will be considered. Further emphasis is placed on strategic considerations, motivation, and the applicant's personal eligibility.

We can offer

- A stimulating and professionally challenging work environment.
- Gross annual salary of NOK 560 000 for a full-time position (code 1017). Further salary increases will be based on seniority in the position.
- Enrolment in the Norwegian Public Service Pension Fund.
- Good welfare benefits.

How to apply

Applications must be sent electronically via the link on this site: "APPLY FOR THIS JOB". The applicant must use the electronic CV form. The application must include:

- Applicants must submit a draft proposal for a research project, within the field of English linguistics, that will result in a doctoral dissertation, as well as a progress plan for the project. The project proposal should comprise up to five pages/12.000 characters including spaces (however, the list of references does not contribute to the wordcount). The project proposal should describe the research project, including research background, main research questions, theory, method, etc. The proposal must also clearly show how the PhD project fits into the section for English linguistics, as well as the LDLC research group, at the Department of Foreign Languages .
- Bibliography for the proposed project.
- A progress plan for the whole duration of the project, including time for the career-promoting work and obligatory training component.
- A brief account of the applicant's research interests and motivation for applying for the position.
- CV.
- Transcripts and diplomas showing completion of the bachelor's and master's degrees. This must contain information about the number of ECTS of the master's degree or be followed by an official and personalized confirmation with this information issued by the awarding institution.
- A short summary of the master's thesis or equivalent thesis (up to three pages).
- A list of any works of a scientific nature (publication list).
- Publications in your name (up to three works).
- Relevant certificates/references.
- The names and contact information for two referees. One of these must be the main supervisor for the master's thesis or equivalent thesis.

The application and attachments must be in Norwegian, another Scandinavian language or English. Documents in other languages must be accompanied by certified translations into English or a Scandinavian language. Please ensure that all attachments are in either Word or PDF format and are uploaded to Jobbnorge within the application deadline.

The Committee of Experts may occasionally request additional documentation be submitted.

Shortlisted candidates will be called in to an interview.

For further information about the appointment process, click here.

Formal regulations

Applicants who have already held a PhD position at the University of Bergen are not eligible to apply for this position.

The employment period may be reduced for candidates who have previously been employed in a recruitment position at other institutions.

The PhD position demands that the applicant has their regular workplace at the University of Bergen and comply with the guidelines that apply to the position at all times.

General information:

Detailed information about the position can be obtained by contacting Professor Randi Koppen on e-mail randi.koppen@uib.no or telephone (+47) 55 58 23 68. Questions of an academic nature can be directed to the coordinators of the Language Data and Language Change research group, Jerzy Nykiel, by e-mail jerzy.nykiel@uib.no or telephone +47 55582358, and Kristian Rusten by e-mail kristian.a.rusten@uib.no or telephone +47 55585195 .

Diversity is a strength that enables us to solve our tasks even better. UiB therefore needs qualified employees regardless of gender, ethnicity, religion, worldview, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, and age. Diversity enables us to solve our tasks even better. UiB therefore needs qualified employees regardless of gender, ethnicity, religion, worldview, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, and age.

We encourage applicants with disabilities, immigrant backgrounds, or gaps in their CV to apply. By indicating such circumstances in your application, you may receive favourable consideration. We ensure that at least one qualified applicant from each of these groups is invited for an interview as part of our commitment to inclusivity and equal opportunity.

We encourage men to apply. If multiple applicants have approximately equivalent qualifications, the rules pertaining to moderate gender quotas shall apply.

The University of Bergen applies the principle of public access to information when recruiting staff for academic positions. Information about applicants may be made public even if the applicant has asked not to be named on the list of persons who have applied. The applicant must be notified if the request to be omitted is not met.

Questions or inquiries about the electronic application process can be directed to the Faculty of Humanities at fakadm@hf.uib.no

Life as a PhD candidate at UiB

Marion Claireaux tells about life and work as a PhD candidate at UiB.

Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nrt6VxMeJ4&index=2&list=PLf8ZIYfAO0qjhROTj6SthDbSScg0ISO6G>

About UiB

The University of Bergen is a renowned educational and research institution, organised into seven faculties and approximately 54 institutes and academic centres. Campus is located in the centre of Bergen with university areas at Nygårdshøyden, Haukeland, Marineholmen, Møllendalsveien and Årstad.

There are four departments and four centres at Faculty of Humanities. Read more about the faculty and departments.

Additional information

Place of service:

Sydnesplassen 1 5007 Bergen (Bergen Municipality)